Gas Down to a Dollar

IN BALTIMORE, BUT NOT IN RICHMOND-HERI WE HAVE THE PROSPECT OF GOING THROUGH

ANOTHER WINTER PAYING TWO DOLLARS. There was quite a stir in Baltimore on cutars and by other means, that the Consolidated Gas Company had made a reduction in the price of gas to $1 per 1,000 feet. Its pronunciamento reads as follows:

"From and after April 1, 1883, and until further notice, this company (except in the case of existing special contracts) will for Monday when it was known, through circulars and by other means, that the Con-$1 per 1,000 feet for the prompt payment of their bills, the price one ($1) dollar per 1,000 cubic feet, net." This created no little surprise among most of the dealers; but the trading of some days back would indicate that at least an inkling of the proposed action had been communicated to few favored ones. In response to the above eard the Equitable Gaslight Company made public the following:

"The home company will continue to sell gas to its patrons at one dollar only per thousand feet, as it has done for the past fifteen months, to the benefit of the citizens of Baltimore. We ask the public to continue to help us in extending our business as they have so generously done hereto fore, and not to fail us at this time. We beg to ask for fifty per cent. of the business

CHARITY HOSPITAL.

A charity hospital, separate and apart from the almshouse, is greatly needed, but in other respects the aid extended to the poor is, I think, ample.

Out-door relief is a necessary part of a city's charity. Assistance of some kind and to some extent outside of the alms-house and at their homes may be considered both wise and humane, although such relief, intended to be temporary, is nevertheless, apt to become permanent, for once received it is hard to make the recipient relinquish it.

with proper precaution may be kept within bounds; and I will here say that I believe the time has arrived when the city should throw around its distribution of charity every safeguard possible, and I would therefore suggest that the fuel to the poor be issued by the city's agents only, for it is a well-known fact that if there he more where it had the monopoly, at $1.90.

If private companies can afford to sell gas so low in Baltimore, surely the city of than one place for its issue there is a lia-

COLORED ALMSHOUSE. Increased and properly constructed apartments are absolutely essential for the care and comfort of the colored inmates of the almshouse. The building now used for the inmates above mentioned is totally unfit for the purpose, not having been erected for an alms-house, and being only selected for temporary use for the said institution, is therefore wanting in nearly every appliance and convenience; and I do not believe that it can be made suitable by any addition or

I therefore suggest that the white alms-by giving to all of the inmates proper ventilation, &c., so necessary for their treatment and well-being.

Dr. J. S. D. Cullen, physician to the almshouse, in a report recently made to the Committee for the Relief of the Poor, says: That with the projected improvements gas can be made and furnished to the consumer's burner at 69½ cents, the committee on Light, the Superintendent and foreman of the gas-works, and Mr. Anderson, under whose plans the new improvements may be made; though these officials of ours repudiate the idea that the gas has, as charged, cost as much as $1.35 on an average for the the buildings annexed to the original old building, facing south. The rooms used for the hospital purposes are in the second and third stories of the middle building, and are 41 feet long, 10 feet 10 inches high, and 20 feet 34 inches wide.

The ceremony took place at half-past 2 o'clock, at which hour Mr. Lottier's parlors were thronged with the fashion and beauty of the city. The suntight was excluded from the rooms, which were elaborately decorated, and the flood of gaslight produced the full effects of a brilliant evening gathering. The floral decorations were especially beautiful and artistic. In the front parlor, just before a mirror extending from the ceiling to the floor, was a magnis, the prisoner when told to stand up extended. executed on the 27th of July.

The prisoner when told to stand up exhibited the same indifference that he had manifested during his trial, but when the crowd, composed of colored people, pressed upon him to hear the sentence the better, he showed some signs of fear. It is bewere jets representing the letters L and U.

He was then put in the nurderers' cell Judge Newman's sentence was as fol-

The evidence proved that for many months before the commission of the murder whereof you stand convicted that you had taken control of Daniel Miller's house and possession of his wife; and when he dared to assert any claim to his lawful wife, you acquescence; that you quartelled with him frequently, and when a pistol was brought to you by the faithless ing to the evidence you did fix him on the night of the 14th of February last, and placed his dead body on the railroad in such a way as to have it run over by two trains, and so mutilated that it could scarcely be identified; but the boots of Daniel Miller, worn by him the day before, were near the mutilated body, his hat was found in the woods in that direction, the blood was on the door, and when Barbara was placed in confinement and had time to think of the hellish work accomplished, she was eager to tell some one about it, and though warned by the officers of the law not to tell, and though you sent her word to pray for you and not go back on you, yet her nerves, when unsupported by you, were too weak to stand, and she has told enough, when coupled with other evi-dence, to place the murder of Daniel Miller by you beyond a reasonable doubt.

You have had a fair and impartial trial; you have been most ably defended by a gentleman of ability and skill, noted for his success in criminal cases, and even now he contemplates appealing to a higher court; but I warn you that there is but one tribunal which can with certainty aid you, and that is presided over by that God whose divine institution of marriage you Remember the children made orphans and scattered among strangers, while their mother is now weeping in a felon's cell, all brought about by your hellish and beastly passions, and then remember that none but God can aid such. The sentence of this court is that on Friday the 27th day of July, 1883, the sheriff of this county do take you, between the hours of sunrise and sunset of that day, pale pink velvet bonnet, ostrich tips, point to the place of execution in the jail-yard of this county, and there hang you by the neck until dead, and may God have mercy

Levy, Davis & Co.

G. W. Davis, No. 827 Broad street, the leading photographer in the South, has se-cured the services of Mr. M. J. Powers. whose excellent work in the art-world hereabouts speaks for itsels Mr. Powers has a reputation for the execution of superior work on large-sized pictures that cannot be approached by any other artist in the city; and, surrounded as he now is with every facility, he will not fail to please the most critical.

Mr. Thalhimer.

[For the Dispatch.]
Although we have little cause to be startled at anything which appears in the papers of the present day, yet I was scarcely prepared for the amouncement of the death of Mr. Thalbimer. Indeed, the last time I saw him it seemed little little to the time I saw him it seemed little likely that I should outlive him to make a kindly reference to his death.

Mr. Thalhimer represented a goodly number of our Hebrew fellow-citizens, who are regarded as among our most honorable men; and in his case notions of honor were drawn from lofty sources of inspiration. He loved the religion of his ancestors, and found in it both incentives to purity of life and motives for usefulness in his social relations with his fellow-men. When the deed of good neighborhood was clearly needful he did not stay to ask whether the object was one of his own race. and with the hand which administered the deed his heart went in earnest fellowship.

I am not a Hebrew, and am but fittle given to excessive praise of men, whether living or dead; but standing by the grave of William Thalbimer I could heartily wish that our Christian fellow-citizen would take counsel or the example of his
